Guide to spending Thanksgiving with your students

Many international students look forward to this holiday with their host families. It is their “first Thanksgiving”. It is an amazing opportunity to bond with your student, create memories and relax.

We’ve put together some ideas for you to consider this weekend.

Incorporating your own traditions and culture

- Host families celebrate this holiday in their unique way
- Feel free to share your own culture and encourage your student to share theirs

Offering your presence to your students

- Communicate your plans with your student via text or in-person
- Schedule an activity (board games, TV show, movie, pumpkin patch) with your student(s)
- Invite them to friends and family gatherings. You are their family here.

Encouraging your student to engage

- Encourage student participation in activities around the house (e.g. let your students participate in meal planning, meal preparation or grocery shopping with you)
- Ask your student if they have any ideas for spending quality time with you (e.g. taking a walk, going to the movies, local farmers market etc.)
